WANTED

Landowners interested in participating in a fox control program in the Berry and Kangaroo Valley areas. Shoalhaven City Council is organising a combined baiting and trapping program in rural areas. The program is design to reduce fox impact on agriculture and native fauna. Foxes spread a fatal parasite Neospora among beef and dairy herbs, kill smaller livestock and prey on ground dwelling native animals, both endangered species and more common ones.

The next stage of the program will occur during the first 2 weeks of September. Landowners currently engaged in fox control or interested in baiting during specific target periods should contact Raelene Mahony on 4429-3392.
